AgriCharts Launches Mobile Website for Agricultural Markets

CHICAGO, IL – July 30, 2008 – AgriCharts, the agricultural division of Barchart.com, Inc., which provides website services, market data and technology to agribusinesses, has launched an agricultural markets, news and weather mobile website, named AgriCharts Mobile, available at www.agricharts.com/mobile. AgriCharts Mobile provides a free service for users to access agricultural market information via mobile devices. AgriCharts Mobile is also available as a real-time subscription-based service. Additionally, AgriCharts Mobile can be private-labeled by third-parties, providing a branded mobile market information service.

“AgriCharts Mobile provides an easy-to-use and full-featured service for those who need access to the markets from anywhere on their Blackberry, iPhone or another mobile device,” said Barchart President Eero Pikat. “Our mobile service provides everything from futures and cash prices to weather, news and commentary,” added Pikat.

AgriCharts Mobile provides market data for futures, stocks, indexes and forex, as well as charts for each of these markets. The mobile portal also features cash grain prices, agricultural market commentary, USDA news and weather. Users can also maintain watchlists and scan markets quickly by using heat maps which are categorized by market.

The real-time version of AgriCharts Mobile is available as a standalone service or add-on to AgriCharts AgPlus or AgriCharts Webstation, which are desktop real-time market data, news and weather systems. To learn more, visit www.agricharts.com and www.agricharts.com/mobile.
