

Aqumin LLC to Include Barchart's DDF Real-Time Data in Launch of Innovative New Financial Software

Houston, TX – November 10, 2008 – Aqumin , a new financial services company specializing in the integration of large scale complex financial data into a single, easy to interpret visual environment, has entered into an agreement with Digital Data Feed (DDF), the data feed division of Barchart.com, Inc., as Aqumin's provider of real-time pricing data. Aqumin's flagship product, AlphaVision™ is now in beta testing and will be released to the market during the fourth quarter of 2008.

"Aqumin chose DDF as a preferred data provider for our flagship software system because of the ease of data integration into AlphaVision™ and because they are an established leader in the industry. Live data feeds the AlphaVision™ landscape on the fly for the individual, professional, business or news entities that need instant access to all market information in one view. Aqumin will help our customers get the most out of this real time price and volume feed in order to react to opportunities as they emerge", said Michael Zeitlin, CEO Aqumin LLC.

"Aqumin is leading the way with innovative technology solutions to visualize and analyze equity markets," said Eero Pikat, President of Barchart. "Aqumin's 3D technology takes market analysis to a new level. As they emerge onto the marketplace, market participants are going to quickly discover the power of their applications," said Pikat.
