

How TradersPro Informs Traders With News From Barchart

TradersPro is a unique, proprietary screening system that identifies qualified powerful stocks, with prime trade entry set ups, and profitable characteristics with the goal of making it as simple as possible to follow the market for every type of trader. The team behind TradersPro thinks that stock market websites or platforms shouldn't require having a "sixth-sense for the markets" or an "investment mind" like Warren Buffet.

TradersPro believes that even brand-new traders should be able to join the investing world and quickly understand what they're looking at - and that is exactly what they aim to do. With unbiased trend direction that traders can follow, TradersPro allows users to identify strong sectors, strong stocks, and know exactly when to buy and sell.

THE PROBLEM

TradersPro strives to make sure their users have all the necessary information available at their fingertips in order to make smart decisions about the market. The website has always offered a wide variety of valuable data for traders, but they were missing a key component that they needed in order to complete their diverse offerings - timely, reliable news.

"The news provided by Barchart is exactly what we were looking for to keep our users informed and up-to-date on what's happening in the markets."

THE SOLUTION

TradersPro was searching for a provider that could not only supply them with dependable news, but also one that would make implementation effortless, and Barchart ended up being the perfect solution. Through Barchart's getNews API, TradersPro can provide their users with news headlines throughout the day, every day to ensure they are properly informed.

"The news provided by Barchart is exactly what we were looking for to keep our users informed and up-to-date on what's happening in the markets," said Jesse Webb, Founder of TradersPro. "The Barchart team also made implementation of the data easy and not time consuming, so we could focus more on helping our users, which we greatly appreciated," added Webb.

With a well-rounded data offering and a unique, proprietary system, TradersPro is looking forward to a bright future and they plan to continue making it simple for all traders to access valuable stock market information for years to come.
